

Women in STEM Scholarship

The scholarship was established by Patrick and Stephanie Whelan who both advocate for females and higher education, specifically in the fields of science, technology, engineering and math. As the parents of two daughters, they understand the power of education and gender equality. This scholarship promotes their passion for assisting and promoting females in successfully achieving their educational and career aspirations in the field of STEM.

Students eligible for this award are pursuing transfer opportunities in:
Engineering, Biological Sciences, Mathematics, Information Technology, Radiological Technology, and any NTCC transfer-based health science program.
